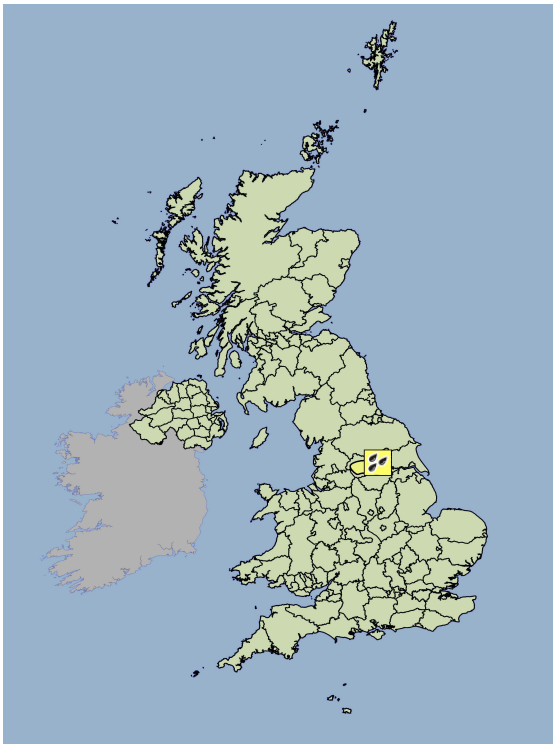
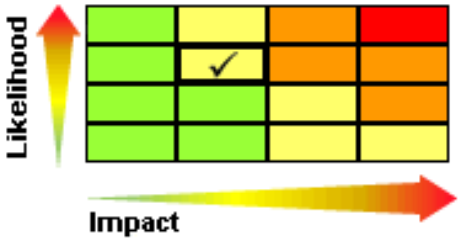
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A mild, moist west to southwesterly airstream will bring further rainfall later in the weekend and into Monday across many western and Pennine areas of northern England, with around 40 mm in places. In most areas this should cause no more than some rather tricky driving conditions, but rivers do seem likely to rise again over parts of Yorkshire.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 12:00 on Mon, 22nd Dec 2014 until 18:00 on Tue, 23rd Dec 2014

Rain will affect many parts of northern and northwest England at times on Sunday and Monday. In view of high existing river-levels in parts of Yorkshire, the public should be aware of the possibility of some minor flooding, affecting for example some road networks.
